(KADIKÖY ÇARŞI) KADIKÖY MARKETPLACE
The traditional marketplace of the Anatolian side has been shared through the common culture of the Turkish, Greek, Armenian, British, and Jewish communities.

(MISIR ÇARŞISI) SPICE BAZAAR
Spice Bazaar, a center of trade at the port where the East and West meets, has been an attraction center since the period of Byzantium. Construction of the New Mosque whose foundation was laid upon the order of Sultay Sultan in 1597 was completed in 1663. The products from Anatolia and Thrace are being sold here with traditional methods.

(BESİKTAŞ BALIK PAZARI) BESİKTAŞ FISH MARKET
You can purchase fish and have them cooked in the restaurants surrounding the fish market in its inspiring new design, where the seasonal fish of the four seas and the Istanbul Strait are sold.

Q.(BEYOĞLU BALIK PAZARI) BEYOĞLU FISH MARKET
It is a street where you can experience the street tastes of Istanbul. It gains meaning with the adjacent Cide de Pera (Çiçek Pasajı) and Nevizade Street. The delicatessen, greenpoint fishmonger, oil store, and butcher are situated one after another. Go around it by having some mussels on a wooden skewer and some kokorezi.

(TOPKAPI SARAYI) HAS MUTFAKI
The symbol of the Ottoman Cuisine. It is a court kitchen where different products are turned into meals through an understanding of refinement. It was inaugurated for visits with a thematic arrangement that introduces today's architecture, organization, catering paraphernalia used and food-dessert culture on 5200 m2 area.

(ÇİÇEK PASAJI) CİTE DE PÉRA
The building plot of the Naum Theater, which was razed in the big fire of Beyoğlu in 1870, was purchased by Hristaki Zografos Efendi, one of the wealthiest of the period. It was built in the form of a new type of marketplace building by Greek architect Cleanthy Zanis with the name of Cite de Pera. It has been a center featuring many restaurants after the restoration in 1998.

(NEVİZADE SOKAK) NEVİZADE STREET
It is a street where you can experience the street tastes of Istanbul. It gains meaning with the adjacent Cide de Pera (Çiçek Pasajı) and the fish market. Nevizade is the symbol of Istanbul's street alevhouse culture.

ALLI MUHİDDİN HACI BEKİR
The candies' confectioner founded in 1777, is Turkey's oldest private enterprise still continuing its activities.
A British tourist, who took the lokum he purchased from Hacı Bekir's store in Bahçekapi, Istanbul, back home in the 19th century, caused the Turkish lokum to be known as "Turkish Delight" in Europe.
